COLORED INSTITUTE

With Prof. Williams, of St. Louis, Mo., As Instructor.

VERY LARGE ATTENDANCE.

Session Began Monday And Institute Will Close Friday.

The Christian county colored institute is being held this week in the Circuit Court room. The session began Monday morning and will close Friday.

Prof. Frank L. Williams, a noted colored educator of St. Louis, is the instructor. At each session he delivers an address to the teachers, all of his talks being along the line of school work and the aims and advantages of education. Many of the teachers have made talks also.

Prof. McDaniel, formerly principal of the Lexington High school, was here yesterday and delivered an excellent address before the body. Miss Katie McDaniel, of this city, also addressed the teachers, her talk proving most appropriate to the occasion. There are 75 teachers enrolled, there being a very full attendance. All teachers holding certificates are compelled by law to attend the institute, else their certificates are void, unless prevented by sickness from being present.

This evening at 8 o'clock Prof. Williams will give a lecture. There will also be a musical program, after which the graduating exercises of the county pupils will be held.

The institute is being presided over by Miss Jennie West, County Superintendent of schools.

HIGH SCHOOL CONFERENCE.

Citizens of County Have Retained Attorneys To Resist Contract.

LITIGATION TO BEGIN.

Attorney Ruby Laffoon Held Meeting With Those Interested Yesterday.

A general conference of the committee of citizens opposed to the contract made for the attendance of County High School pupils in the City High Schools was held here yesterday. Attorney Ruby Laffoon, of the firm of Yost & Laffoon, of Madisonville, met with the committee, his firm having been retained last spring. Mr. John W. Garnett, Chairman of the Committee, announced that he had decided that the contract was a fairly satisfactory one and resigned from further activity in the matter.

Mr. W. A. McKenzie was elected the new Chairman. Others prominent in the matter were Messrs. C. W. Garrett, W. F. Lacy and Frank Campbell. Mr. E. D. Jones was a member, but it is said he has retired from the organization, and Mr. Jeff J. Garrett, another member, was not present.

Mr. McKenzie stated to the Kentuckian that steps would be taken at once to seek to annul the contract, which the attorney advises is illegal.

The contract was in the nature of a compromise agreement after the city and county had started to build jointly a $100,000 High School. Under the agreement the county forfeited $7,000 already paid for the work, gave $2,000 for 1911 pupils and agreed to pay $3,000 for five years for an unlimited number of county pupils in the City High School, the cost of maintaining the schools being borne entirely by the city. At the end of five years the county is to have the right to buy half of the building for $50,000, with a credit thereon of $7,500, or may continue to send county pupils at the same rate charged pupil not entitled to the benefits of the schools.

Just what steps will be taken, has not been stated.

Given Up to Justice

By John Philip Orth.

When a young man has graduated as a botanist what does he do? He may take up house-painting or black-smithing, but the chances are that he will hunt up some relative living in the country and pursue his studies in the field for some weeks in the hope of making new discoveries.

Young Ronald Chisholm did that very thing. He had a brother living among the hills of Massachusetts, and that brother was very glad to see him. The young man had simply to eat, sleep and wander. He climbed hills, crossed dales and sauntered over meadows, and he hadn't an idea of anything beyond the collection he was making. He had no idea that there was a daring horse-thief working in the country, and that less than three miles away there lived a young lady with golden hair, brown eyes and a face called lovely.

After a time the doings of that horse-thief excited attention. The sheriff and his deputies got after him. That is, they picketed certain roads by night and searched certain woodlands by day. They likewise got out hand-bills and offered a reward. The fellow had been seen by more than one farmer as he dodged from place to place. Perhaps there have been young botanists who have taken great interest in horse-thieves and their doings, but it wasn't the case with young Chisholm. In fact, he was hardly interested when informed at the breakfast table one morning that his own brother had been made a victim. He had reason to believe that he was on the trail of a new brand of catnip, and his thoughts all ran that way.

On this particular morning the botanist took a new direction when he left the house. It was straight across the country towards the home of that damsel with golden hair. Without his knowing it she was the magnet, though he laid it to catnip. In a hammock on a wide and shady veranda Miss Gladys Dexter swung to and fro, while the locust blossoms scented the air and the insects droned and hummed. Her father was away, her mother lying down in her room with a headache, and the girl seemed to have the world to herself. She might have slept but for steps on the gravel walk.

"Oh, Miss Dexter," said the sheriff as she roused up, "you've heard about the horse-thief, I reckon?"

"Yes."

"He's sure got nerve. Hanging right around here yet. Your dad hasn't got any horses to be stolen, but I want you to keep your eyes open. Here's a good description of him. If you get your eyes on him it's telephone to me, and half the reward is yours."

"I'm no thief catcher," laughed the girl, "but if the man comes calling I shall think it my duty to notify you."

"That's good enough. Wouldn't ask you to give away a tramp, but here's a hard case. He's stole five good horses. May turn to burglary next. Just telephone and I will gobble him."

After the sheriff had departed Miss Gladys read the description, and with the bill still in her hand she wandered down the highway to the creek which crossed it a few rods below the house. With her own hands, the day before, she had made a little dam and imprisoned a few little fish there. Had they got away? No; they were there yet and frisking about, and their antics were being watched with amused interest when a young man with a plant in his hand climbed the fence into the road. He at first seemed taken back at sight of the girl, who certainly looked a bit alarmed, but after half a minute he lifted his cap, and holding out the plant he asked:

"I beg pardon, but have you seen anything like this growing in the field beyond?"

"No, sir," was the curt reply.

"Ah, I was hoping to find it there. So far as my knowledge extends—"

With her heart in her mouth and her face flushing, Miss Gladys was walking away. The horse-thief! He was skulking about in broad daylight. He had been taken aback at seeing her, but had summoned his nerve and carried it through. Yes, and she holding a printed description of him right there in her hand! "Height, about five feet nine; good figure; dark eyes and curly hair; speaks like an educated man."

Miss Gladys was all in a tremble, but she walked away slowly and with her usual dignity. At the gate, out of the corner of her eye, she noticed the young man climbing back into the field he had come from, but he showed no haste. Yes, he should be given up to justice at once. No, he shouldn't be. That is—well—maybe so and maybe not—Miss Gladys was remembering the dark eyes and curly hair—the gentle voice and kindly smile. It didn't seem as if such a man could be a criminal. He might be a Raffles, but he could not be a low-down horse-thief. Who would tell why he had gone wrong? He might have loved and met with disappointment. He might—

"Pshaw!" exclaimed the girl to herself, and walking to the telephone she rung up and got the sheriff and gave him the news.

"Good for you!" he came back. "I'll have the fellow within an hour. At the creek, you say?"

"Yes, but you won't shoot him or anything?"

"Not unless he shoots first. He's a desperate character, you know, and I shan't take any chances."

"I hope—I hope— Well, I may be down at the creek when you come. Good-bye."

She was at the creek when the sheriff and two deputies came up in a buggy with the horse on the dead run. She was there because, ten minutes earlier, from an up-stairs window, she had caught sight of the horse-thief sitting under a tree in the field he had entered. He was bare-headed and seemed to be examining plants and flowers. In whispers, although the criminal was forty rods away, she gave him up to justice again, and within the next sixty seconds she hoped he would get away clear. In that she was disappointed, however. He saw the officers approaching but made no move. They came up to him with pistols in their hands, but he smiled at them.

"Under arrest? Horse-thief? Oh, all right! Handcuffs? Well if they thought best, but there was some mistake about the matter. No? All right again."

The officers came back to the highway with their prisoner, and Miss Gladys wished she could rescue him, and almost wept to think she had given him up. He was clinging to his plants and smiling as he talked, and he even lifted his cap to her.

"Great capture!" whispered the radiant sheriff. "It'll be the talk of the state. Don't say a word and we'll divide the reward."

"I won't touch a penny of it! I'm sorry I said a word to you!"

"Well, by Jinks!"

The botanist went to jail, but only for an hour, or until his brother could be telephoned to. Abject apologies from sheriff, deputies and about forty citizens who had remarked that they should have known he was a horse-thief if meeting him in China.

And one more apology—from Miss Gladys. Young Mr. Chisholm called to give her the opportunity, and she said she was very, very glad, and from that moment they dropped horse-stealing for botany and poetry and music, and at last accounts they were very, very chummy—so much so as to be under suspicion.

Privately printed books constitute a very interesting bypath of literature. One produced by the Prince Consort is a subject of inquiry in the current Notes and Queries. The Court Journal of September 23, 1865, mentions that the Prince Consort made a special study of Balmoral.
By his directions and largely with his assistance a book on the Balmoral country, topographical, botanical, geological, descriptive and remiscient, was compiled. It was beautifully printed by an eminent London firm, but by the Prince's strict orders only six copies were struck off. Is there a single copy now in existence? The British Museum, the Windsor Library and the Balmoral Library have been searched in vain.—London Chronicle.

Man's Preposterous Appetite.
Herbert W. Fisher in the World's Work for July gives a very uncomfortable simile as an illustration of the surplus quantities of food we consume.

Two generations ago a Dutch physician, out walking with his child, called the lad's attention to a passing hay load as big as a mastodon. "There, my son," said he, "is the equivalent of what one man eats in a year in excess of what he needs."—World's Work.

That New Theater

ON NINTH STREET

And What it Will Mean to Hopkinsville.

Really a most modern, roomy, comfortable, and let it be said, luxuriant, place devoted to the most popular amusement known to the world—the Photoplay—Moving Pictures.

Here are a Few Facts About the Place

Seating capacity: Ground floor, 420; Balcony 230.

Width of building, 42 feet; length, 100 feet; height of ceiling from floor, 26 feet.

Wide Aisles, Steam Heat, Splendid ventilation and above everything else, absolute safety from fires and panics, as ample exits are provided on two alleys.

The Policy of the Theater

Is to be straight moving pictures, but it is felt that the patronage is going to permit the addition of many pleasing features in connection that will add greatly to the entertainment, but Cheap Vaudeville won't ever be a part, no, never. The house is going to be conducted by the owner on as high a plane as possible to retain and gain the patronage of the estimable citizen.

Admission

Uniform and unchanged, at 10 cents, and 5 cents for children and the little ones nothing. The moving picture show that charges 5 cents has earned the slang phrase, "Jitney Show." This isn't going to be any "Jitney Show." If the price of a dish of ice cream is too much to pay for an hour of high-grade entertainment in a comfortable modern theatre, then indeed has the era of low prices set in.

The Place

(As yet unnamed) Opens in October. The pride I will take in opening it to the public is only equalled by the desire I have to afford this section of the country a first class theatre so that my patrons can be amused and made happy, and if I can accomplish this, I shall succeed, and if I fail to do so, why I ought to fail financially.

Heart is Best Guide.

The man who offers sympathy to a neighbor and who comforts him in time of trouble can afford to run the risk of being accused of not minding his own business. An act of genuine kindness is readily distinguished from intermeddling. The heart is sometimes a better guide for action than the head.

Improved Motorcycles.

By recent changes made in the design of the motorcycle its appearance is greatly improved by making use of the tubes of the frame for the storage of many of the parts which are now hung to it. For this purpose it is necessary to make the tubing a trifle heavier.

Points AboutPeople.....

DRYER—The Washington Herald of August 27 has this to say of a young lady whose parents live in this city:

Miss Bernice Dryer, of this city, will sail August 31 on the steamship Kaiserin Auguste Victoria, of the Hamburg-American Line, for Berlin, where she will take up vocal studies with Prof. George Fergusson. Miss Dryer has for some time been studying in Washington under Mrs. Oldberg. She will carry with her the good wishes of a host of friends and acquaintances interested in her voice, and confidence is expressed by all that a brilliant career is to follow her studies here and abroad.

WINFREE—Judge W. P. Winfree surprised his friends last week by appearing on the streets minus the flowing beard he has worn for many years. His closest friends have to look twice at his beardless face before they recognize him.

BASSETT—Dr. Frank H. Bassett, who has located in this city, showed his good faith by entering his oldest hopeful Charles Thompson Bassett in the public schools Monday. As soon as he can find a suitable house he will begin housekeeping. By-the-way, Dr. Bassett will umpire the ball game Saturday.

HAZELIP—The Republicans of Paducah have nominated for Mayor Thos. N. Hazelip, who at one time lived in this city and was in partnership with the late L. Yonts in the practice of law. His nomination was bitterly opposed by one faction of the Republicans and several of the nominees in the city have refused to run with him. Paducah now has a Republican Mayor, but the Democrats are more than hopeful of winning in the coming election.

BRODIE—Mr. T. L. Brodie, until recently of Lawton, Oklahoma, has moved to the city and entered into partnership with Mr. John T. Waller, the architect. He is an experienced architect and the new firm will make plans for all classes of buildings.

FRITZ—Mr. J. Sol Fritz has retired from the real estate firm of Fritz & Layne, but will still make Hopkinsville his home.

WATSON—Judge Watson, who is presiding in the famous trial of Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., for the murder of his wife, at Chesterfield, C. H. Va., is a cousin of Prof. Barksdale Hamlett, nominee of the Democratic party for Superintendent of Public Instruction of Kentucky.

CLARDY—Dr. J. D. Clardy was in town yesterday, the date being the 83rd anniversary of his birth. His health is good and Dr. Clardy bids fair to live many more years. He still looks after his extensive farming interests and large business affairs and takes an active interest in state politics and public matters generally. The Doctor still prefers his horse and buggy to an automobile.

OWEN—Mr. Andrew E. Owen, probably the oldest man in Christian county, now in his 93rd year, was in town a day or two this week. His home is near Gracey and he frequently comes to town. Mr. Owen is tall and erect and his flowing white beard gives him a patriarchal appearance. Only recently has he begun to show the feebleness that comes with old age.

Old Lady's Sage Advice.

Knoxville, Tenn.—Mrs. Mamie Tawe, of 102 W. Main Street, this city, says: "If you had seen me, before I began to take Cardui, you would not think I was the same person. Six doctors failed to do me good, and my friends thought I would die. I could hardly get out of bed or walk a step. At last an old lady advised me to take Cardui, and now I can go most anywhere." All ailing women need Cardui, as a gentle, refreshing tonic, especially adapted to their peculiar ailments. It is a reliable, vegetable remedy, successfully used for over 50 years. You ought to try it.

Caused By Paralysis.

Mary Dunn died at the asylum last Saturday, aged 60 years. She was a native of Christian and was received for treatment only a few months ago. Death was due to general paralysis.

DOVES USEFUL TO THE FARMER

Claimed They Can Destroy
More Weeds Than Best
Farm Hand.

WILL BACK NEW MOVEMENT.

Agricultural Organizations Are Urged to Co-operate With Audubon Societies.

New York, August 30.—Backed by almost every agricultural organization in the country, special efforts to check the slaughter of turtle doves, that destroy thousands of weed seeds at one meal, have been begun at the headquarters of the National Association of Audubon Societies in this city. Before these beautiful birds fly south, after a summer of wholesale extermination of the weeds that menace every crop on the continent, it is planned to try to avert the murderous fusillade that always butcher millions of them across the Southern and Southwestern States. As a most important step in this direction the Audubon workers have just succeeded in having a State Game Commission, supporting a strong force of wardens, established in Georgia.

That each member of that popular species of wild dove can destroy more weeds in a day than the most vigorous farm hand equipped with a hoe is being demonstrated to the farmers in every section by recent investigations of the government Biological Survey. In the stomachs of three turtle doves alone 23,100 seeds of hawkweed, foxtail, wood-sorrel, paspalum and other damaging growths have been discovered, plucked from the fields at one dinner by the persistent feathered weeders. Every day in the year these doves are shown to take 64 per cent. of their feed in weed seeds from farm land, and with each stroke of their nimble bills the ripening germ of the rank weed is forever killed.

A considerable amount of the half-billion dollars that the farmers of America pay each year for labor might be saved by the natural increase of the dove weed killers, which is heavily offset by their widespread shooting, according to reports that are being received at Audubon headquarters here. Over the peanut and wheat fields of the South as many as 4,000 turtle doves are known to have been butchered at a single shooting, where the birds were lured oftentimes by illegal baiting. In Texas, Kansas and Oklahoma a fight is already being made by the farmers to have these weed-seed eaters protected, while the people of California have just defeated an attempt to abolish a close season on shooting them.

"We believe we can count upon the support of everyone interested in the crops, the whole country over, in our efforts to save the economically invaluable turtle dove from destruction," said T. Gilbert Pearson, Secretary of the National Association of Audubon Societies, at its headquarters, 1974 Broadway, today. "When the people of the South and Southwest come to realize the damage that this bird butchery does to the country's crops, I feel sure that they will join with every agricultural interest to help us preserve a bird that is a beautiful and generally beloved by all Americans as it is financially helpful to every farmer."

HIS WAS A NATURAL ERROR

Suspect Thought the Enlargement of Finger Print Was Impression of His Corduroy Pants.

Mayor Gaynor was talking to a New York reporter about the famous robbery case wherein a criminal had been convicted by means of the Bertillon system of finger prints alone.

"It reminds me," said the mayor, "of a story about a parson. This parson had a fine orchard, and one summer, just when the Bertillon system first came out, the orchard was robbed. The only clue left was the robber's finger print on an over-ripe peach. The parson had a photographic enlargement of the finger print made. Then, with this enlargement under his arm, he accosted in the main street the man whom he suspected of the theft.

"Pete," he said, "somebody robbed my orchard last night."

"Pete took his pipe from his mouth. He gulped nervously. 'Is that so, sir?' he said.

"Yes, Pete, that's so," said the parson; "but the thief left his mark behind, and I shall easily trace him. Do you see this, Pete?" And the preacher held before the man's eyes the huge enlargement of the finger print.

Pete, beholding the photograph, made a gesture of despair. 'I see there hasn't no use denyin' wot I done,' he said. 'Ye got the bulge on me, parson. I pinched yer fruit, and no mistake. But I certainly would like to know, though, where ye got that there impression of my corduroy pants!'"

SCOTCH AND IRISH DREAM

Head Clerk Tells of His Vision of the Piper and the Street Gang Foreman.

"There is only one thing that I envy Andrew Carnegie for," said the head clerk, "and that is the fact that he is able to hire an organist to wake him up every morning to the sound of music. I read that in a paper one day and I became so enamored of the idea that I hired an Italian to come around and grind his street piano every morning under my window. But the other lodgers complained so violently that I had to give it up.

"But that's not what I started to tell about. I had a queer dream last night. I dreamed I was Carnegie and that I had just been awakened out of a refreshing sleep by my Scotch piper, who was pacing up and down the wall around my castle at Ninety-first street and Fifth avenue. The Scotchman was pouring his whole soul into 'The Wearing of the Green'—anything is possible in a dream, you know—when up came a small boy, who began to suck a lemon right where the piper could see him. The Scotchman struggled bravely for a moment, his features contorted in agony, and then the tune died away into a mournful shriek. Whereupon the Irish foreman of a gang working out in the street produced a shotgun from somewhere and indignantly shot the piper off the wall. Yes, I woke up then."

The Wrong Cue.

"Could you make your expression a trifle—er—livelier?" asked the man at the camera.

His sitter, who looked as though he were about to have a tooth extracted by a painless dentist in whom he hadn't the remotest faith, frowned more mournfully than ever.

"Imagine," suggested the photographer, "that you are watching the coronation procession go by. Picture the joyous cheers and the flags and the smiling faces of the crowd."

The sitter shifted crossly and gave a good imitation of a dying walrus.

"Think of your friends!" exclaimed the photographer, in desperation.

"Think of your relations!" "Confound it, sir, but that's just what I'm doing!" blurted the sitter, losing his patience. "This photograph is to go to some of them who want to visit me and stay a month!"

New Linguistic Stock.

Prof. A. F. Chamberlain believes that he has demonstrated that the language of the Urus, or Puquinas, dwelling in the region of Lake Titicaca, on the borders of Peru and Bolivia, constitutes an independent family of speech. A vocabulary of some hundreds of words and many phrases and sentences of this curious language have been collected. A few descendants of the ancient Urus, some of whom still retain their mother tongue, are found scattered along the Rio Desaguadero, between Lake Titicaca and Lake Aullagas, or Poopo, and it is evident that in the past they occupied a much wider territory between these lakes.—Youth's Companion.

For Deserving Young Men.

The will of Mrs. Grace R. Shaw provides for the establishment of a fund of $35,000 to Harvard university, to be called the Henry Russell Shaw fund, the income of which is to enable graduates of the college to travel abroad. The award is not based on scholarship. She said in the will that she gave the money for the benefit of young men who had not attained high scholarship, but had made good use of their opportunities and gave promise of success in business or professional careers.

Ain't It the Truth!

"Nor us. It's a little thing like the lack of money that is bringing silver threads amongst the gold."

CREDIT FOR JEWISH FARMERS

Co-operative Unions Are Established
That Lend Them Money for Productive Purposes.

With the help of the Jewish Agricultural and Industrial Aid society three co-operative unions have been recently established, one in Fairfield county, Connecticut, one in Rensselaer county, New York, and the third in Ellington, Conn.

These credit unions are established in connection with the Jewish Farmers' associations in those places, which are branches of the Federation of Jewish Farmers of America. The farmers in each branch raised $500 by selling shares, and the Jewish Agricultural and Industrial Aid society loaned $1,000 to them at a low rate of interest.

The management of the credit unions is entirely in the hands of a board of directors, who are elected by the farmers.

The money is loaned to farmers for productive purposes on easy payments and with small rates of interest. While in Germany, Italy and other European countries the credit unions have been in existence for many years and were found to be very helpful to the farmers and small business men, in this country this is the first attempt—American Hebrew.

HONESTEST PEOPLE IN WORLD

That is the Opinion Count Jacques de la Tour Blanche Has of Americans.

Count Jacques de la Tour Blanche was praising in New York the honesty of America.

"You are, for all the tales about your political and corporate corruption," he said, "the most honest and the most honorable people in the world. It is to your credit, not to your discredit, that adventurers so often dupe you in Europe. It isn't because your minds are stupid that you are duped. It is because your minds are noble—too noble to believe such mean, small creatures as European adventurers can exist."

"That was a typical adventurer who, meeting an American millionaire in Paris, congratulated her on her good fortune in making his acquaintance."

"You know," he said, "I always pick my friends."

"But this lady, who was up to snuff, retorted:

"As you would a chicken, eh, marquis?"

The First Free Lunch.

To Ned Mather, a native of this city and a man who spent his declining years here, is given credit for originating the idea of free lunches, says the Watertown Standard. He inaugurated the first free lunch in Baltimore, and Baltimore historians place the year at either 1865 or 1866. The front bar at Barnum's hotel in Baltimore, where the quality folks gathered, is where it is said to have originated.

One day Mather conceived the idea of free lunch in the place and sent word to the kitchen to ascertain from the cook what she had cooked that day in which she felt particular pride. The cook sent back word that the Smithfield ham was worthy to tickle the palate of a king. Mather ordered her to make up some sandwiches, and when the usual crowd came they found these spread on a table and declared Mather a philanthropist of the most useful and praiseworthy type.

Up to that time all that there was of a free lunch was a few crackers on the bar, but no one ever thought of eating them.

Vaccination for Typhoid.

The last report of the surgeon general of the army adds more evidence to the already overwhelming testimony in favor of the protective value of anti-typhoid vaccination. The figures given for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1909, showed an incidence of typhoid fever sixteen times greater among the unvaccinated than among the vaccinated troops. Up to October 1, 1910, only five cases had developed among the non-immunized. Moreover, of these five cases four were so mild as to leave doubt as to the diagnosis, and there were no bad effects of any kind as a result of the vaccination.—From the Journal of the American Medical Association.

To Help College Girls.

It is expected that college women throughout the country will be interested in the plans of the New York bureau of occupations that has recently been organized to bring to the attention of the undergraduates different kinds of employment for which they may fit themselves during their college career. The Woman's Educational and Industrial Union of Boston has had such an organization for some time under the management of Miss Laura D. Gill. It has placed many women in suitable positions and helps those in uncongenial occupations to something better.

To Train Porch Vines.

Secure a child's wooden hoop. Fasten it with strong wire, so that it will be in the exact middle of the porch opening. Attach all the cords for the vines to climb on from the hoop to various points at the sides, top and bottom of the porch. When well covered with growing vines, the porch will present a beautiful wall of green, with a circular window in the center that is most decorative.—Woman's Home Companion.

WHERE GOLD ORE ABOUNDS

Untold Wealth in Minerals Hidden in Plains and Mountains of Colorado.

"Untold wealth in gold, silver and copper lies hidden in the plains and mountains of Colorado, awaiting only discovery by the prospector," said John A. Herron, a wealthy miner of Denver. "I make this assertion on the authority of mining experts and engineers who have gone over nearly every foot of territory in the state. One old miner of Colorado recently declared that the San Juan country in Colorado is so full of minerals that to tell of it would sound like a fairy tale. He declared that he discovered the riches of that section so long ago as 1860, but that it has never been touched because the region where ore abounds is almost inaccessible. When it becomes possible to develop the mines of San Juan, I believe it will be found to be the best mineral field in Colorado."

"This statement may seem inconsistent with the recent figures of the census bureau in Washington, which show that the last eight years the number of men employed in mining, milling and smelting in Colorado has been cut almost in half. In 1902 these industries had more than 35,000 men on the pay rolls, but in 1910 the number had been reduced to less than 20,000."

"I believe that the time is not far distant when there will be a revival of the great mining boom which years ago induced thousands of persons to flock to Colorado in search of wealth. skilled miners and scientific engineers and geologists agree that hundreds of miles of the mountains of Colorado are mineralized. Quantities of gold are awaiting those who will search for it."

WINDMILL AS MOTIVE POWER

French Invention Applies the Principle to Vehicles Which Move at High Speed.

Long ago the patent offices of the world came to the conclusion through experts that few basic principles are embodied in new inventions. Adaptations of old and well known laws of physics merely are applied in a new form in mechanical contrivances. What shall be said of M. Constantin, a French inventor who has applied a windmill wheel to the front of vehicles which move at high speed, or which have to move against heavy head winds? To the end, too, of conserving the energies which drive the vehicle.

As we understand it, the inventor has gone no further than the building of a small model wagon. The wagon is of aluminum and weighs about four pounds. But with its wind wheel mounted in front and turned toward the air-driven from an ordinary electric fan, the vehicle takes a shoot into the wind. With a large fan of the general office or restaurant type, the small wagon takes a 6 per cent grade with a load of 20 pounds in the wagon box.

The principle of the invention takes for granted that the wheel mounted in front of a huge van imposes a minimum of additional wind pressure. But as the wind blows strong, or as the movement of a power driven vehicle creates its own head pressure, the axis of the wind wheel, engaging geared wheels through a spiral groove in the axle, returns from air friction a marked quantity of energy which may be of great value in automobiles, motor trucks, electric cars, and railroad trains.

The Detective Was Great.

Running his bow lightly or heavily across his old violin, according as he wanted light or heavy music, the great detective, fully dressed, leaned back in his chair and ruminated.

The door opened and an excited but otherwise healthy woman entered.

"I knew it was you who opened the door as soon as you entered the room," remarked the great detective, and the woman immediately became lost in wonder.

Feeling around, however, until she found herself again, she exclaimed: "They tell me you can find anything!" The great detective bowed modestly.

"Oh, sir, my baby has swallowed a valuable needle. How can I find it?" Without even pausing for reflection the wonderful man spoke: "Have the child swallow a thimble."

It was a pretty case!

Wasted Sarcasm.

After a week in the country a prominent lawyer returned to town, determined to stay during the summer. But before coming home he had the satisfaction of telling the keeper of the "real old country boarding farmhouse" just what he thought of things. "There is one thing on your table," said the lawyer, "which is not to be excelled by the best hotels of New York or Philadelphia." "What is it?" asked the farmer. "The salt," answered the attorney, with a fine display of biting sarcasm. "Well, I'm glad ye liked it," returned the farmer. "It's the best Jimsons' keep, an' I ain't pertickler about the price."

Forehanded and Intelligent.

Storekeeper—Well, my little man, what can I do for you?

The Kid—Say, when I comes in here this afternoon with a lady and asks you for a dollar's worth of your best chocolates, just pass me out a penny's worth of them little things in the corner, will you?—Puck.

The Moguls after dropping the first game to Jackson, pulled themselves into form and took a double-header Tuesday, Johnson pitching the games of his career, ending in a double shut out. Hopkinsville won the first game on bases on balls, a wild throw and an error, which let Webster score from third. Calbert pitched a no hit game, but lost by walking Ireland. In the second game Gossage was hit twice and the game lost by Pete Taylor's wild throw.

Flies And Bunts.

Catcher Glenn and Third Baseman Hargrove have been sold by Vincennes to the Nashville Southern league team. They are two of the best players in the Kitty.

Humphrey is ranked by many fans as the best southpaw in the league. He is certainly in the same class if not a notch better than Yon or Hancock. He has good curves, a cool head, watches runners on the sacks like a hawk and has good steam.—Paducah Sun.

Williams, the new umpire, is "Bulldog" Williams who played shortstop for Hopkinsville awhile last season. He was at one time a student of McLean College.

Tommy Copeland, until last week with the champion Vicksburg team of the Cotton States league, has signed with Henderson as an outfielder and started with a three-bagger Tuesday. He takes the place of Roush.

Calbert of Jackson and Coleman of Fulton each pitched a no hit game.

Laitner, whose real name is Murphy, who played with Clarksville last year, has been signed by Secretary Abernathy and left Tuesday to join the Moguls at Paducah. He will play in the infield, just where is not known until he is given a tryout.

Pitcher Troy Brown left Paducah Monday for Philadelphia to join the National League Club of that city. He was purchased from the Paducah team several weeks ago for $1 000.

Tick Hick, the latest pick of Vincennes is said to be slick and quick and handy with his stick and able to turn a trick.

Allen Brown, Clarksville's new outfielder, is due here Saturday.

Back in second place, 6 games behind Fulton.

Assaulting umpires is now a very common occurrence in some of the towns. This disgraceful practice should be stopped, and will be if the police do their duty.

Webber respective scored both winning runs in the 1-0 games at Jackson Monday.

Johnson, the Hops pitcher, showed up strong from the very beginning. He never lagged, and is the best pitcher that has worked here—Jackson Sun.

That's what they all say.

Green, of Vincennes, is the best center fielder of the league. No doubt about it. He had some hard chances yesterday, and he took care of them in great shape.—Jackson Sun. We resign Kes is out of the game.

Ben Johnson Goes Up.

Representative Ben Johnson, of Kentucky, Tuesday gained the distinction of being the first Congressman that ever attempted an airplane flight. He ascended in the air over 600 feet at Washington with Lieut. Harry Arnold during a high wind. The machine narrowly escaped turning topsy-turvy several times during the twenty minutes the occupants were riding puffs of wind.

Mean Trick.

Here is a song two little girls sang Sunday at the Christian church at Catlettsburg: "I wish I had a nickle, I wish I had a dime. I wish I had a sweetheart, I'd kiss him all the time. This was substituted for what they expected to sing, 'Jesus wants me for a sunbeam.'"

Died In Chair.

Cleveland, Aug. 30.—When a barber Prospect avenueshop finished shaving Patrick Hayes, 60 years old, today, he brought his chair to an unright position and tendered the customer a check for his fee. Hayes made no move to pay and the barber, looking closer, discovered that he was dead. The coroner's verdict was heart disease.

Brothers To Fiddle.

Bob and Alf Taylor will engage in a fiddling contest at Jonesboro, Tenn., to-morrow night.

In Improved Quarters.

The First National Bank of Clarksville gave an "opening" Tuesday to celebrate the return of the bank to its old quarters following very general improvements. The interior of the bank is beautifully finished in white marble.

REAL ESTATE.

Farms bought, sold and exchanged. Western lands a specialty. General Sale and exchange business. Correspondence solicited. Will answer promptly.

In Asylum For Treatment.

Mrs. Sallie J. Morris, of this city, was adjudged of unsound mind by a jury in county court Tuesday. She was sent to the Western asylum for treatment. Mrs. Morris is 70 years old and her trouble was caused by declining health.

Bloodshed in Whitley.

William Lawson was instantly killed; Crit Lawson was fatally wounded and Joe Lark Bennett seriously injured during a fight at Red Man's Lodge in Whitley county yesterday.
